SOME STARTLING PACTS

Regarding "The Good Things in the Roman Catholic Church" as Presented in an Address by Rev. Mr. Dickerman, Paster of the Church of the Messiah.

In a very Interesting discourse last Sunday upon "The Good Things in the come a pope, Roman Catholic Church," delivered by the Messlah, many striking passages of special Interest occurred.

Mr. Dickerman said in the course of the sermon:

When we look at a Roman Catholic congregation and see illiteracy, costly churches and the poverty of the parish toners, we are somewhat amazed. But this liliteracy, this poverty, does not exist everywhere. Look to Washington and Baltimore, France, Spain and Australia, with their cultured Catholic congregations. In Washington and Baltimore men eminent at the bar, in the counting room, in all the high and influential walks of life-many of these men are of the Roman Catholic communion. In that communion are men great in science, in literature; and every fair mind is obliged to admit that there is high talent in the Roman Cath-

The great Roman empire went down in utter collapse and her only survivor was the Roman Catholic church. Like the empire, the church spread her functions throughout the known world and claimed supreme authority. But of course the church's functions were of the ecclesiastical kind and her supreme authority was in spiritual and moral concerns.

The name she claims for herself is the Roman Catholic church; Roman, because the seat of her chief sec, of her pope, is the city of Rome; Catholic, be causs she claims to be universal, to spread throughout the world and be for all men. No wonder she has such a following. In 450,000,000 Christians there are 200,000,000 Catholics.

The missionary agency of the Roman Catholic church is the greatest in this world. The priests went forth into barbarism and taught the savages thrift, civilization and religion-in the South Sea Islands, on the American continent and everywhere else where there was a people to be gained to Christianity. Look to Japan. Before Commodore Perry reached there the Catholic missionaries had been in the dynasty years upon years. In India four-fifths of the converts to the Christian religion are Catholics. This may be surprising to us. Still it's a fact. Scarcely had the Puritan set foot on the American continent than Father Marquette and other Catholic missionaries were exploring and Christianizing the present dominion of Canada, were sailing down the Father of Waters, were in what is now California. Wherever there was a new foot of soil the Catholic missionary was sure to be there. Nor was he inspired simply by a spirit of propagandism. His was a life of peril, of sacrifice, and he was sincere in all his convic-

The classic treasures extant were nearly all found among the monks.

The Roman Catholic church is not the enemy of the Bible. She believes the Bible to be inspired. But she does not believe that any book is infallible. She does believe and promulgates that there must be an infallible interpreter of the Bible. She antagonizes private interpretations and this, I believe, is one of her chief objections against the reading of that book in the public schools. In her course against private interpretation I believe that she is more than half right. She was quick enough in when texts are quoted as the basis or doctrine and are made to mean almost anything, there is danger.

"Admission to the Roman Catholic church is by the sacrament of baptism, as she believes that all are born tainted with the sin of Adam."

The Rev. Dr. Dickerman then defined the other six sacraments of the church -confirmation, penance( encharist, extreme unction, holy orders and matrimeny. He then went on to the Latin Hturgy of the Roman Catholic church. Proceeding he said:

"The Roman Catholic church gives in the doctrine of purgatory a hope for eternal salvation, a hope even beyond the grave. Protestants can boast of no such place. They probably wouldn't care to make the boast. The doctrines of the Catholic and Protestant churches are identical to a large number-the inspiration of the Bible, the Trinity, the diety of God, the fall of all in Adam, the redemption, the resurrection, eter-

I don't lieve in holy water, holy bells and so forth, but I do believe that we should espect the church as the house of God. the gate to heaven.

"I also like in the Roman Catholic hurch the exalting of motherhood in the Virgin Mary. They know that Mary was not the mother of God, but n her they raise motherhood to the Lett highest, to the supreme.

"Further, I like the Catholic church ecause virtue is current there. They make no distinction in morality as some of our evangelists do who speak of 'mere morality' and other kinds The Catholic church never speaks contemptuously of morality, but some Proestants assign it to a very inferior

"The Roman Catholic church deserves great credit for the spirit and the polly by which she holds her members, No other power on earth could do It.

"The world owes a great debt to that church for being the patron of art and music, sculpture and architecture. The grandest cathedrals are Catholic. So are some of the sublimest sculpture and painting, and much of the best music has been composed by Catholics. With such architecture, art, music and her liturgy, no wonder that the Roman Catholic church is so impressive. "The Protestants now recognize the fact and are slowly introducing some I these into their own churches. The Catholic church appeals to the eye and other senses with her grand houses of worship, her sublime music, the vaintings, the statues, the incense, her pageantry of cer montal, and her authority speaking with no uncertain voice. "I have been among the Catholics and I find two classes-the progressive and the conservative. Some of the God and humanity to man were the noblest traits. Remember Father Damien among the Hawaiian lepers. See the sisters of charity and of mercy administering to the yellow fever victims at Memphis, Tenn., risking their own lives to save those of others and without making any distinction of creed You find these noble women in the midst of every pestilence, sliently struggling to save the life spark of other and often losing their own. They are a credit to their church and the world.

"I would look upon it as a calemity if the Catholic church were disorganized. It would be perilous if the lost her hold on her massess, her 200,000,000. has done great, grand service. Like all other institutions she has goodness and infirmities. No other church can take away her children from her peculiar teaching and no other organization can hold them.

"Oh," looking toward Heaven with the light again falling upon his broad for head, "oh for the unity of the spirit in the bond of peace! May we find that peace which the world cannot give and the world cannot take away." Next Sunday evening the Rev. Mr. Dickerman will speak on "The Good Things in Episcopalism-the Religion of Ceremony."
